Mexican and Asian are two Fast Casual cuisines gaining popularity at a steady pace around the U.S. And with Asian and Mexican Fast Casual restaurants rapidly expanding, operators can capitalize on a diner's desire to try different cuisines. The variety of ingredients available to operators – gochujang, chorizo, galangal, tofu, and more – offer up unlimited ways to update menus to suit globally-minded consumers. The distinctive flavors that both Asian and Mexican cuisines offer have the potential to attract a wide consumer base.
